Usuhari Glass Daïginjo

Shotoku, the producer of Usuhari glasses was originally manufacturer of hand blown light bulbs. He became a master in the technique of glass blowing, and started producing very thin glasses that will be chosen by leading Japanese restaurants for the service of sake.

Glass by the unit, in a wooden box

??????? ???

Glass - Height : 9.5cm - Diameter : 7cm - Volume : 25cl
Box - Height : 11cm - side : 9.3cm

Product Type: Glass
Category: Tasting
Format: 25cl
Producer: Shotoku Glass
Region: Pref. of Tokyo
Ingredients: Glass

The curves and shape of this Daiginjo glass with the point in the bottom have been designed to keep intact the flavors of sake. Popular with professionals, it is recognized in Japan as the ultimate sake tasting glass, from breweries, to the most exclusive restaurants. Each glass is individually packaged in a traditional wooden box. This is a perfect gift for fine tasters, and can be used to taste other beverages, including spirits like whisky and aged shochu.